Reds Drive Nazis Back At Stalingrad

OTHER SIGNS SHOW ALLIED STAR RISING

Timoshenko Improves Position in Region of Great Volga Steel City.

By The Associated Press

Russian armies were reported to have driven the Germans into retreat below Stalingrad today, regaining several miles of lost ground in the critical struggle for the great Volga steel city, and evidence in the global war signs accumulated that the allied star was rising.

Soviet dispatches said Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's forces, launching one of the strongest counter-attacks since the Germans crossed the lower reaches of the Don, had generally improved their positions in the Kotelnikovo sector, 95 miles southwest of Stalingrad.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper said Russian shock troops stormed enemy-occupied hills captured a defense section formerly erected by the Germans and destroyed several fire-power points.

The Russians admitted that Gen Fedor Von Bock's offensive had driven a wedge into Soviet lines northwest of Stalingrad, but front-line dispatches to Izvestia, government newspaper, said Red army infantry, artillery and tank units fulfilled their order to halt the enemy by all means" in that sector.

Reds Use Chute Troops

Other reports said a Russian "secret group"—parachutists or plane-borne troops—landed in the German rear, beat off attack by Nazi planes and soldiers, and killed 300 Germans in a two-day battle.

Simultaneously, Adolf Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged that the Red armies were attacking German lines west of Moscow and noted "hard defensive battles" in the Vyazma and Rzhev sectors west and northwest of the USSR capital.

While the Russians hurled back the invaders about Kotelnikovski, Soviet headquarters conceded that the Germans had cut a threatening new wedge into Red army lines in the Don bend below Kletskaya, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

A Soviet communique also acknowledged fresh Nazi gains in the western Caucasus as axis troops forced two more crossings of the Kuban river in the Krasnodar sector.

Far down the Caucasus, where German flying columns have driven more than 250 miles along the Persian-Baku rail line toward the Caucasus oil fields, the Russians said their troops "waged defensive operations and repelled an enemy attack" in the Mineralnye Vody region.

Meanwhile, Soviet newspapers urged the United Nations to carry the war to Germany "with all their power and energy" and declared that Hitler "already has

"BIG STEEL" WAGES BEFORE WLB TODAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 — The Steel Corporation and the United Steelworkers of America before the war labor board to argue the amount of increase due nearly 300,000 employees of "Big Steel's" five subsidiary companies.

The factual record made in the "Little Steel" case acceptable as a basis of consideration, and indicated it would seek a decision by hearing oral arguments one week after the brief was certified.

Negotiations broke down over the union demands that U. S. Steel grant the same concessions recommended by the board in "Little Steel" a month ago—5½ cents an hour, in case retroactive to Feb-

Marines Fight Way To Footholds in Solomons

U. S. Airmen Comb Seas To Keep Japs from Landing Reinforcements To Relieve Her Troops.

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 18—United States marines have won solid toeholds in the Solomon islands, in the first step to victory in the first allied offensive in the Pacific, while allied airmen comb the southern seas to blast the Japanese in their ships and harbors wherever they may be trying to go to the rescue.

This was the broad picture today over thousands of square miles of the south Pacific where the fighting forces of the United Nations have begun to roll back the enemy in a campaign of growing magnitude.

It was the official story of the United States navy and of General MacArthur's headquarters.

A navy communique issued in Washington showed the attack on the Solomons to have been a mighty onslaught which caught the Japanese flat-footed on Aug 7 in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area one of their most valuable bases.

Harbor Is Good

The harbor of Tulagi is one of the best in the southwest Pacific and the airfield on Guadalcanal makes that island a gigantic aircraft carrier anchored athwart the sea lane from America to Australia.

Without divulging details of the still continuing and still growing battle, the communique gave these assurances that the first phase has ended in defeat for the Japanese in the air, ashore and afloat:

1. The marines have made several landings in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area, "rapidly" overcoming enemy resistance, and their captured shore positions "have since been developed and are now well established."

2. Japanese naval forces closed in for action with the allied fleet on only one night, Aug. 8-9, and backed off "before reaching the vessels engaged in the landing operations."

3. Enemy air attempts on the first two days of the landings inflicted only "minor damage" on the American troops.

The communique mentioned damage to both sides in the naval encounter but it kept the enemy guessing, of course, both what the United States lost and what the United States knows of Japan's cost in trying to defend the Solomons' shores.

Its only figure was at least 36 Japanese planes destroyed, 18 of them seaplanes demolished before they could get into action and fully as many more planes knocked out in the vain attempt to stem the marines' rush ashore from transports.

(The navy previously had announced that one United States cruiser was sunk and that two cruisers, two destroyers and one transport were damaged. The new information, that the close-quarter sea battle lasted but one night and ended in the enemy fleet's failure to reach its quarry, however, evidently exposed as false the Tokyo claims of some 30 United Nations ships sunk or damaged.)

Raid Other Ports

Airmen of General MacArthur's command, meanwhile, scoured the Japanese-held harbors in the South Sea islands close enough to the Solomons to reinforce their imperilled garrisons.

A communique today said that allied planes on offensive reconnaissance bombed shipping in the port of Kavieng, on the island of New Ireland, but that the results were unobserved.

For the first time since Aug. 1, however, enemy raiders struck back forcibly at Port Moresby, in southern New Guinea, causing casualties and damage to installations.

In the only land action besides that in the Solomons, the Japanese inched ahead in the Kokoda area of New Guinea, 60 miles east,

FLYING FORTS RAID GERMANY

U.S. Bombing Offensive Grows as Huge Planes Rip Into Enemy Cities.

By The Associated Press

AN AMERICAN BOMBER STATION IN BRITAIN, Aug. 18—A growing American bombing offensive to smash at Nazi strongholds in Germany and occupied Europe in coordination with the RAF until the war is won was under way today after a highly successful, All-American bombing attack on the German-held railway yards at Rouen, France.

Twelve flying fortresses, with Brig. Gen Ira O. Eaker in one of the leading planes, flew yesterday through all the anti-aircraft fire the Germans offered, mastered the best of Germany's fighter planes and left their target under a great pall of smoke and sand."

Six other flying fortresses executed division attacks on Dunkerque and Cherbourg.

All eighteen of the giant bombers returned safely.

They were escorted to their targets by RAF, Canadian and United States fighters and two of these were lost.

It was an American show and from General Eaker on down the boys were delighted. Flying at heights where tank-supplied oxygen was almost constantly necessary, the fortresses hardly broke formation throughout the run.

The bombs which tangled up the railroad yards at historic Rouen, 87 miles northwest of Paris, poured out of sleek ships bearing such designations as "Baby Doll," "Peggy D," "Jonnny Reb," "Birmingham Blitzkrieg," "Big Punk," and "Berlin Sleeper." General Eaker's plane was labelled "Yankee Doodle."

Maj Gen Carl Spaatz, commander of the U. S. air forces in the European theater, was plainly entrusiastic.

"We will bomb Germany as fast and as often as possible until we win the war," he said. "This marks the real start of an ever-increasing American bombing offensive."

He predicted devastating "precision" blows from the graceful flying fortresses while the giant RAF bombers scourged German cities one by one at night. The fortresses, with 13 guns each are the most heavily armed bombers in the air today.

British Bombers Raid Rail Center

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 18 — British bombers struck at Osnabrueck, railroad and industrial center in northwestern Germany, last night in the eighth RAF attack on Germany this month. Five British bombers were reported missing on the mission, indicating a raid of moderate strength.

While Osnabrueck was under attack, other bombers and fighters bombed airfields in German-occupied territory, destroying one enemy bomber. Another enemy aircraft was shot down by the bombers attacking Osnabrueck.

U. S. INDICTS 7 IN OHIO AS WHITE SLAVERS

District Attorney Calls Ring One of Biggest Ever Uncovered in Nation.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 18—A federal grand jury today indicted seven persons as ringleaders in what District Attorney Don C. Miller termed "one of the greatest white slave rings ever uncovered in this country."

Miller and FBI agents declared the alleged ring's operations centered at the Green Castle barbecue in Canton, O., and included New York City, Saratoga Springs and Glens Falls, N. Y., Meadville, Pa., Miami, Fla., Little Rock, Ark., Cleveland and Lorain, Akron and Zanesville, O.

Naming the seven as conspirators, the indictment charged they placed "women and girls in fear of physical injury by giving or administering physical punishment for the purpose of making them continue in the practice of prostitution and debauchery and other immoral practices."

Kept In Fear

"The girls would be sent to Saratoga Springs in the racing season, and to Miami in the winter season," Miller asserted. Because of "fear of bodily harm, they would give practically all the money back to the procurers. All have been given beatings at one time or another."

Indicted were:

Louis Peter Morel, 51, Cleveland.

Carl Theodore Bruell, 36, of Canton, O., his brother.

Frank Bruell, 29, same address, defendant on a pending second degree murder charge.

Jack Johnson, 38, of Amsterdam, N. Y., and New York City;

Sadie Cook, Negro, former operator of a Canton house now serving a life term in Marysville (O.) reformatory for second degree murder.

Vera Sih, alias Vera Miller, Lorain, O., indicted as operator of a house of prostitution; and Joseph Evans, about 44, of Cleveland.

Miller said maximum terms of two years and $10,000 fines were possible from this charge, and separate indictments of some individuals, charging transportation and inducing, provided a maximum of five years and $5,000 fines on each count.

Faces 10 Charges

Morel was indicted on ten of these counts. The Bruell brothers jointly on two and Carl Theodore Bruell as an individual on six more, while Johnson was charged on 16 counts.

FBI men said scores of girls were involved in the asserted operations, covering the period from Jan. 1, 1940, to July 1, 1942.

Miller said the alleged conspirators recruited waitresses and similar workers. Clyde Smith, acting agent-in-charge of the Cleveland FBI office who worked on the case with Agent James R. O'Hair, said all except Evans have been arrested. Johnson is free under $20,000 bond and Vera Sih is out under $2,500 bond while

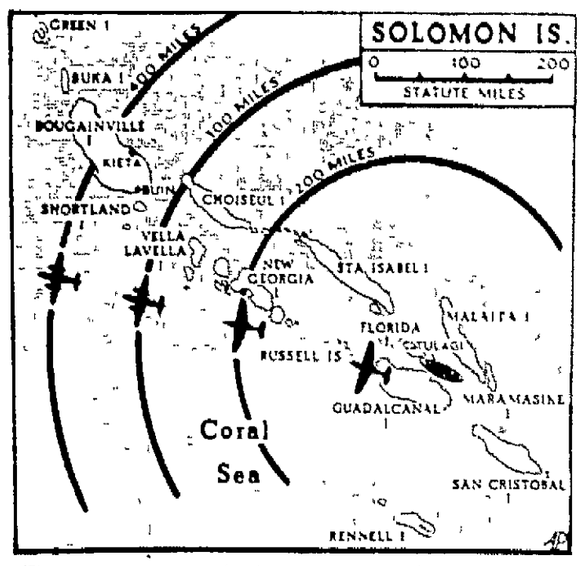
SOLOMON OBJECTIVES AND FIGHTING BASES



The navy announced that shore positions taken by American Marines in the Solomon Islands "are now well established." London reports said it was believed U. S. forces had achieved two major objectives seizure of Tulagi harbor, only good warship haven in the southeast Solomons, and capture of a big air base on Guadalcanal island which would put the whole island chain in easy pursuit and bomber range of U. S. Air Forces. (Associated Press Map.)

Amateur Day on Sunday May Become Annual Marion Event

Association Meeting Held To Push Arrangements for City Park Benefit Sports Program.

Amateur Day will be an annual summer sporting event in Marion if plans of the Marion Amateur Day association for the continuation of the program materialize.

This city's first Amateur Day program will be staged Sunday at Lincoln park. Although the tentative program as announced yesterday promises a gala program of entertainment, several last-minute additions are expected to add greatly to its success as a first-year undertaking.

While every one of the dozen or more men and women who attended last night's committee meeting in County Treasurer Marion Hinklin's office is bent on making Sunday's program a rousing success, they are primarily interested in setting up an organization to sponsor recreational activity throughout the summer months in years to come.

Sunday's program at Lincoln park probably will wind up the 1942 work of the association, with the exception of a softball game between two girls' teams at a later date. However, in 1943 the organization might sponsor two, three or four different programs, County Treasurer Hinklin, who is acting chairman of the county defense recreation committee, said.

Want Recreation Director

The ultimate goal is to set up, through the cooperation of the city government, a full time recreation directorship. In order to accomplish this, the committee concluded, it would be necessary to form an organization powerful enough to go before city council and demand passage of legislation creating the office.

During the course of the conversation, one committeeman asked who was in line for appointment as a recreation director. In answer, Hinklin said that Supt. E. E. Holt of the city schools recently mentioned the name of Marion Harding High school's new football coach, Victor, Dorris, formerly of Granville as an excellent choice. Dorris, Hinklin added, had been lauded by state recreation groups for similar work conducted elsewhere in Ohio.

The present committee assisting in completing arrangements for Sunday's program is only a skeleton committee, and a temporary one. Shortly after Sunday's first Amateur Day, all those who have purchased memberships either annual or honorary membership, will be asked to attend an organization meeting.

To Elect Officers

At this time officers and a board of directors will be named for one-year terms. This will transform the organization to a permanent body and will place responsibility on those elected by the membership. Although the responsibility will be placed in the hands of a comparatively small group, the organization will operate more efficiently because its officers will be able to draw their committees from a large group of membership holders.

Ellis Oiler, a representative of CIO-affiliated unions, asked the committee if politics was to be connected with the organization in any way. It was the unanimous belief that it wouldn't and County Treasurer Hinklin, who as acting defense recreation director, served as chairman of the meeting, said he would have no part in the program if politics was involved.

Oiler explained that the group he represented, the laboring class of Marion, would be 100 per cent behind an all-Marion recreation organization; however, he added if politics was involved its chan-

Lost Funds Go to Wrong Man in Money Muddle

Bankroll of $52 Changes Hands Several Times. But All Ends Well.

The loss and recovery of $52 yesterday afternoon and this morning involved half a dozen Marion residents in a complicated money mixup that eventually had a happy ending.

A Marion woman gave a young relative $32 in currency to deposit in the bank for her yesterday afternoon. On the way to the bank the youth lost the money.

The spot where it fell was beneath a real estate office window. Noticing the money, a clerk ran from the office to pick it up.

An elderly Marion man who for years was an employe of the city service department entered the office to inquire about a property payment due today and saw the girl pick up the money on the outside.

Claims Money

Thinking the money was his and not checking to make certain, he ran from the office and demanded and got return it. Believing the man honest, the clerk "returned" the money and received $1 as a reward. The man left and said he would return this morning to make the payment.

Meanwhile, parents and relatives of the youth who originally lost the money learned somehow or another that the money had been found by an employe of the real estate office.

They went to the office and were told by the clerk that it had been given to the elderly gentleman.

Temporarily, knowledge that the money had been found and that there was some chance of getting it back eased the family's worries.

Mixup Untangled

About 9 this morning the family went to the office and shortly after their arrival, the aged man returned in a distressed state.

He told the clerk that this morning when he prepared to come down town to make the payment, he found he had $52, the amount which he had saved for the payment, in one pocket and $51, the missing sum minus

Landlord-Renter Terms Ignored by Marion Board

Occupant of House Willing To Pay $50, But Has Rent Cut to $40.

Marion's rent control board, which spends most of its time trying to make peace between landlords and renters and which openly encourages them to reach agreements on rent problems wherever possible, disclosed in a decision at its weekly hearing last night in the common pleas courtroom that it doesn't intend to be bound in every case by what property owners and tenants decide is a fair rent.

The board found occasion to take this position in the case of a Marion avenue house that came up for consideration on the application of the renter to have the board approve the $50 a month payments he has been making. The landlord was in favor of that figure, too and didn't even bother to come to the hearing. The renter explained that "we both agree on the rent but we want the board's approval to make it absolutely legal."

The board learned the house hadn't been rented on the rent ceiling date of March 1, but that when last rented it brought $40 a month. After considering the possibility that owners of neighboring houses would soon come in after approval of similar rent figures if they approved this one, the board informed the renter that his rent had been cut $10 a month—to $40.

The renter, apparently slightly bewildered by the unusual situation, nodded his head and left.

"Roomer" Problem

The board, in other cases last night, indicated it intends to take into consideration the subletting of rooms by renters when rents are to be fixed, and followed this policy in a couple of decisions. On two occasions James E. Reed, one of the bar association committee lawyers appointed to work with the board, protested against this in cases where only one or two roomers were involved, but the board held to its stand.

In the first case heard last night, the renter of an Uncapher avenue property who had signed a one-year lease to pay $40 for a house protested, saying he felt this rent was too high. Despite the arguments of the owner, who said he couldn't "break even on my investment" at $30 a month, the board fixed the rent at $30.

The next case came on the complaint of a renter who said his landlord, a Marion minister, had boosted his rent on a Fillmore avenue property from $15 to $22.50. The minister answered that he had originally rented the property to a family of three, but that now a son and his family also live there, adding four more persons to the total in the house. He said he felt he should get the increased rent if seven persons instead of three were to live there. The renter answered that there really were only six there now and that the number would be reduced still further soon. There was some talk about why the owner hadn't made some promised improvements on the non-modern property and it was also

REGULATION BY FEDERAL AGENT BEGINS SEPT. 1

County Is One of 38 Areas Where U. S. Will Enforce March 1 Ceiling Prices.

A federal administrator will take charge of rents in Marion county on Sept. 1.

Announcement that Marion county is one of 38 districts throughout the nation to be brought under federal regulation as defense-rental areas on that date was relayed from the office of Price Administrator Leon Henderson today by the Cleveland regional office of war information, in charge of Samuel Slotky.

Here are a few of the main points of the announcement:

The federal administrator will use March 1, 1942 as the rent ceiling date.

The only major exception to freezing rents as of last March 1 will be in cases where accommodations have been substantially changed by a major capital improvement.

All landlords must register their rental properties with the federal administrator between Sept. 1 and Oct 10 under penalty of a $5,000 fine and a year's imprisonment.

Today's move is directed chiefly at rising rents in areas containing ordnance plants, nearly half of the 38 affected areas containing this type of war plant.

Two maximum rent regulations will be issued within a few days, one for hotels and rooming houses, the other for housing accommodations other than hotels and rooming houses.

All of Marion county, with an estimated population of 44,898, is in the Marion defense rental area and will be within the administrator's jurisdiction.

To "Take Over" Sept. 1

Today's announcement stated a rent administrator will be named by Sept. 1 and will take charge on that date.

The order issued today is the fourth from the Office of Price Administration in its fight against inflation and will establish federal control of rents in one-third of the nation.

Over six and one-half million persons live in the areas to be brought under control Sept. 1. By that time a total of 45½ millions will be living in defense-rental areas under federal rent regulations. Of the 396 defense-rental areas thus far designated 134 will be under federal control on Sept. 1.

"Federal control of rents is working," the price administrator said. "In the 96 areas where we made maximum rent regulations effective in June, July and August, the rent index has shown a sharp drop. This decrease percentagewise has been as high as 11.8. This means a tremendous saving in the nation's rent bill. It means a complete stabilization of one of the most important items in the cost of living. I repeat—rent control is working."

The 38 new areas, all with a March 1, 1942 freeze date, are scattered throughout 21 states, and include such cities as New Orleans, Kansas City, Tampa, Fla., Des Moines, Ia., Essex county in the Boston, Mass., area, Allentown and Bethlehem, Pa., Chattanooga, Tenn., Jackson Mich. and Utica-Rome, N. Y.

Ordnance Plant Areas

This Sept. 1 action might be termed a move against high rents in areas containing ordnance plants. Nearly one-half of the areas are locations of this type war production activity. Ordnance plant areas are those which see tremendous in-migration of construction workers once ground is broken for a plant. These workers, their task completed, make way for the operating personnel of the plant, and a second in-migration of thousands takes place.

In the main, ordnance plants are located in isolated sections of the country. Small, nearby towns receive the sudden impact of the in-migration of workers; all housing facilities are snapped up, and rents start soaring.

In these areas setting March 1, 1942 as the maximum rent date—the date beyond which rents in general must not go—catches the rent increases made since that date.

Control of rents in the 38 new areas will be effectuated by issuance of two maximum rent regulations, one for hotels and rooming houses, the other for housing accommodations other than hotels and rooming houses. Both regulations will be issued within the next day or two, and

Coffey Heads Ohio Legion

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., Aug. 18—Martin W. Coffey of Middletown heads the American Legion in Ohio for the next year.

Coffey, sales manager of the Philip Carey Co. and a participant in three major engagements in the first World war, was chosen unanimously at the 24th annual state convention of the Legion today.

He had been vice commander for the last year. In his new post he succeeds Floyd Hartpence of Westerville.

Rossiter S. Williams of Oak Hill was elected vice commander and Charles McBride of West Salem was named treasurer.

Coffey is 46. He enlisted in the New York National Guard in 1916 and saw action in 1917 with the 52th artillery and participated in the St. Michel, Argonne, Chateau Thierry engagements. Discharged in May, 1919, he became a charter member of New York City's Wilson post of the Legion.

The election was the major business at final sessions of the convention which yesterday voted 288 to 285, to table for the war's duration a proposal to admit service men of the present war to Legion membership.

Delegates urged the proposal be taken up for "definite action immediately after the war," and meanwhile pledged the Legion's resources would be made available to all men and women in service now.

Frazier Reams of Toledo, constitutional committee chairman, said an act of congress would be required to change the Legion's charter for acceptance of such new members.

Cincinnati was chosen as next year's convention city.

MOSCOW TALKS CHEER BRITAIN

London Sees New Phase of War Initiated in Russian Conference.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 18—It was expressed belief today that the Churchill-Stalin talks last week initiated a new phase of the war which would swing the United Nations into a multi-front offensive that could end only in Germany's utter defeat.

Prime Minister Churchill, flew to and from Moscow with British and United States officers in three four-motored American bombers, himself messaged Premier Stalin "I am certain that our contact will play a useful part in furthering our cause."

A Pravda dispatch broadcast by the Moscow radio said the result of the conversations—which W. Averell Harriman attended as the representative of President Roosevelt—was a "great political defeat for Hitlerite Germany."

Official announcements said the decisions concerned the "war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe" — a phrase specifically omitting Japan.

Secrecy veiled the details, but the tabloid Daily Sketch said "the final decision must have been made" on the question of establishment of a second European front in 1942.

The historic Kremlin conferences, the smooth execution of first of the promised daylight raids on Nazi-occupied Europe by United States bombers and indications that the Solomon islands offensive was progressing well all helped to show the start of what the British regarded as the victory trail after almost three years of defensive fighting.

The BBC, in an English language broadcast said, the joint Moscow - London announcement "inaugurates the final phase of the war which will see the decline and end of Germany's offensive power and the swift sequel of an allied offensive."

The Times said the meeting "should ensure that any cobwebs which may have hitherto obscured corners of the military situation are swept away."

"We can be sure," said the New Chronicle, "that decisions of the conference have been made in the spirit to launch an all-out offensive against Germany as soon as circumstances permit."

of Port Moresby, but an official spokesman said the advance was not significant.

The second phase of the battle of the Solomons apparently was the mop-up of Japan's battered shore and sea forces.

While the navy communique indicated that the marines' job now was to track down whatever enemy forces remain in the islands, a New Zealand Press association correspondent reported a fleet "of great strength" harrying the Japanese forces in the surrounding seas.

U. S. To Control Marion Rents

will have as their effective dates Sept. 1, 1942.

The regulations provide for setting maximum legal rents when the accommodations have been newly constructed, where they have been substantially changed by a major capital improvement, and where they were unoccupied on the maximum rent date. Other provisions deal with evictions, services, leases, grounds for adjustment in rents, penalties and especial landlord-tenant relationships.

For tenants in these new areas, one over-all guiding principle is set forth by the regulations.

Tenants on paying their September rent are to pay no more than the rent which the same accommodations were bringing on March, 1942. The only major exception to this comes when the accommodations have been substantially changed by a major capital improvement.

This change must be one, however, which materially alters the character of the living quarters, such as the addition of a bathroom, completion of a room in the attic of a home, installation of sidewalks where there had been none before. Ordinary repair and maintenance is not considered a major capital improvement.

If no change has been made, then the rent to be paid on September 1st cuts back to what it was on March 1. The tenant needs no approval from his landlord to make this cut, nor does he have to consult with his landlord before making it. Such a reduction, where one arises from the roll-back date, is automatic with the issuance of maximum rent regulations.

Must Register Properties

Under the regulations, all landlords are required to register their rental properties with the area rent office. It makes no difference whether the property is rented at the time of registration or vacant and offered for rent—the property must be registered. This registration falls into two classifications. One registration is for houses, apartments, flats, tenements and similar dwellings. This registration is made in triplicate, one copy for the rent office files, one copy for the landlord, and one copy for the tenant. The registration reports the maximum legal rent which can be charged, and the services and equipment provided with the dwelling quarters. The other registration is of rooms in hotels, rooming and boarding houses, trailer and auto camps tourist homes and cabins and all living quarters of a like nature. This registration is made in duplicate, one copy for the area rent office, one for the landlord. Tenants do not receive a copy of this registration statement. However the landlord is required to post in every room a schedule of the maximum legal rents which can be charged for the room on the basis of terms of occupancy and number of occupants.

Both registrations will take place at some period within 45 days of the effective date of the regulations. Both must be completed by Oct. 16. Failure to comply with the registration requirements may subject willful violators to the $5,000 fine, one year's imprisonment, or both, provided for under the Emergency Price Control Act for violation of any regulation or order issued under the act. It is this act by which congress gave authority for the control of residential rents.

Dates to Be Set

Exact dates for the periods of registration will be announced locally.

The names of the area rent directors who will administer federal rent control in these areas will be announced sometime between now and the first, as will be the locations of the area rent offices.

The Ohio, Illinois Kentucky, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Tennesse defense-rental areas all have March, 1942 as their maximum rent date. The areas, their boundaries and their 1940 population include:

Clinton, Ind.-Newport, Ill., Parke and Vermillion counties in Indiana and Edgar and Vermillion counties in Illinois, 150,360.

the $1 reward, in another pocket.

This discovery cleared the problem and likewise, erased any doubts as to the man's sincerity and honesty.

Even with this, everything was not cleared up. The man had given the real estate clerk a $1 reward and in order to balance both bank rolls he had to request the return of the reward. The clerk was glad to return the dollar and end the mixup.

Floor Fight Possible for N. Y. Nomination

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—A floor fight for the prized New York Democratic gubernatorial nomination—the first in 20 years—appeared a possibility today on the eve of the party's state convention in Brooklyn.

There was a chance, however, that opposing factions would agree on a single candidate at a conference called for tonight before the camps of U. S. Senator James M. Mead, who has the blessing of the White House, and State Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., candidate of State Chairman James A. Farley, assemble for battle.

BRAZIL HOLDS UP DIPLOMATIC VESSELS

Exchange Ship Delay Laid to U-Boat Sinkings.

By The Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 18—The Brazilian diplomat exchange steamers Bage and Cuyana remained in port today, the start of their voyage to Europe with Axis diplomats delayed, while public feeling flared into open demonstrations on resentment at the sinking of five Brazilian ships by Axis submarines in the past three days.

Strongly-worded editorials in the Brazilian press fanned anti-Axis sentiment, and cases of attacks on German property by enraged Brazilians were reported.

The Journal said the delay in departure of the diplomat exchange ships definitely was connected with the sinkings.

"We have been patient in excess," the newspaper declared.

The count of the missing from the five ships, one of them a troop transport, was still incomplete.

The government, bitterly criticizing the axis for "disregard of the most elemental concept of human rights," promised that the attacks on Brazilian property and lives would not go unpunished.

Lifeboats containing many survivors from the five ships have arrived at coastal points, it was announced, but the loss of life is generally expected to be high. The ships lost were the 4,801-ton Baependy, the 1,005-ton Annibal Benevelo, the 4,872-ton Araraquara, the 1,075-ton Arara and the 2,169-ton Itagiba.

CHURCHILL PILOT

Russians Want Second Front in The Right Place

By Gaylord Levitan, combined from dispatches by Mac Kenzie, Wide World war analyst, appearing in the Berlin today by Glenn Babb.

For Russia this is still a one-front war. She want a second front, but she wants it in the right place. The Churchill-Stalin conference at Moscow, while reaffirming the alliance of three great powers emphasized once more the Soviet union's anxiety to confine her share in the war to one front until her allies can marshal the power and choose the time and place for the second.

Japan was not mentioned in the communique which announced the results of the Moscow conclave. But the care taken to exclude Japan from the announced scope of the decisions showed clearly the threat of Hirohito's army in Manchuria was never far from the minds of the conferees.

The United States and Britain, much as they may hope to see eastern Siberia ultimately available as a base of operations against Japan, are compelled to accept their ally's single-front stand with sympathy and understanding. One of the great dangers confronting the United States is that the much-debated second front will be opened by Japan before America and Britain are ready to strike.

Certainly this is no time for Russia to challenge the Mikado's Kwantung army.

What Russia hopes for or expects from Japan remains one of this war's great mysteries.

It may be that a faraway third front is playing a telling part in the United Nations' urgent effort to ensure that they and not Japan shall open the second front. The battle of the Solomon islands remains obscured but indications grow that this may become a vortex which will draw an increasing share of Japan's naval and air strength into battle.

She dares not let this contest go by default.

She fears the Solomons may be the first step in the long, bloody fight back northward through the islands of Indonesia.

While an attack on Siberia would be primarily a land operation the Tokyo warlords must think twice about launching it at a time when their command of the seas and the islands is at stake in the Solomons and the Aleutians.

RUSSIA

laid bare other vulnerable parts of his front in Europe in order to obtain success on the Soviet-German front."

Signs of Victory

Portents of an eventful United Nations victory included:

1. In London, Britons expressed belief that the Churchill-Stalin talks last week initiated a new phase of the war which would swing the allies into a multi-front offensive to bring about Germany's downfall.

The London Daily Sketch said "the final decision must have been made" by Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin on the question of creating a second European front in 1942.

Churchill himself messages Stalin, declaring:

"I am certain that our contact will play a useful part in furthering our cause."

2. U. S. army headquarters disclosed that an American offensive to smash Nazi strongholds in Germany and conquered Europe has now been launched, with giant "Flying Fortress" planes delivering a successful All-American bombing attack yesterday on Rouen, France.

"This marks the real start of an ever-increasing American bombing offensive," said Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of U. S. air forces in the European theater.

Promises More Attacks

"We will bomb Germany as fast and as often as possible until we win the war."

Pilots returning from the raid said Rouen, German-occupied rail hub 87 miles northwest of Paris, was left shrouded by "a great pall of smoke and fire."

3. In the 12-day-old battle of the Solomon islands, the navy announced the U. S. marines have won strong positions in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area after "rapidly" crushing Japanese resistance in their surprise landing Aug. 7.

The navy clearly indicated that the first phase had ended in defeat for the Japanese in the air, ashore and afloat.

Countering Tokyo's exorbitant claims of victory, the navy gave this account of America's first offensive in the far pacific.

On land, the Marines caught the enemy flat-footed and seized beachheads which "have since been developed and are now well established." (Tokyo, by contrast, asserted that all but a small force of U. S. Marines had been "annihilated.")

At sea, American and allied warships intercepted Japanese naval forces, rushing up to combat the invasion and in a one-night battle, Aug. 8-9, sent the enemy fleeing before they could reach vessels engaged in the landing operations."

In the air, Japanese planes attacking on the first two days of the landings inflicted only "minor damage" on American troops, while at least 26 Japanese seaplanes and land-based planes were destroyed.

New Zealand dispatches said an allied fleet "of great strength" was harrying Japanese warships in the surrounding seas, and the marines were reported systematically tracking down whatever enemy forces remain in the islands.

Other developments in the world-wide conflict included:

European air war—RAF bombers, attacking Hitler's reich for the eighth time this month, bombed the German war foundries city of Osnabrueck, the site of big steel works and one of the main outlets for the Nazi arsenals in the Ruhr valley.

"Material damage was done, and there were casualties among the civilian population," a German communique acknowledged.

German night raiders struck at targets on the English south coast and in southeast England.

Battle of Egypt — America's rising aerial might was reflected anew with the announcement that U. S. army medium bombers had gone into action in the middle East arena for the first time, scoring hits on axis targets at Matruh, western Egypt.

This followed yesterday's disclosure that American airmen who have been flying RAF fighter planes in desert training had completed their dress rehearsal in actual combat and now were ready to fly their own latest-type United States plane into battle.

Amateur Day Plans Pushed

ces for success would be greatly lessened.

Membership Drive

Memberships will be sold after Sunday's event as well as prior to it. Both George Baum, who is the originator of Amateur Day and is general chairman in charge of arrangements for Sunday's first program, and Hinklin said that the Lions club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce would continue to sell both types of memberships to all Marion groups. Because many groups meet only occasionally during the summer months and because nearly a hundred organizations other than these are still to be contacted, the sale of memberships will continue indefinitely.

Wherever possible, the committee in charge of the sale of memberships will contact Marion residents in groups. For example, one of the committeeman spoke briefly before the Lions club yesterday. This club became the first in Marion to be 100 per cent for the program. Every one of its more than 30 members subscribed a membership. Members of the Rotary club will be contacted today and the Kiwanis club will also be canvassed later in the week.

Labor unions, the P.-T.A., churches, and social groups within the next several weeks will be asked to purchase memberships.

Ticket Sale Plans

George Baum, an employe of the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., told the committee last night he would have 20 girls employed in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area selling tickets and programs in the downtown area Friday and Saturday nights. Hinklin said a similar number would be raised locally.

Printing of a 12-page program in color for Sunday's Amateur Day is being completed. They are expected to be delivered by Friday so that the street sale can begin at once. They will cost 10 cents.

Amateur Day tickets are 25 cents in the advance sale or 50 cents on the day of the event. Annual membership is $2 while an honorary membership is $5.

While considerable rivalry has been stirred up among teams meeting in softball games Sunday the election of the Amateur Day queen is holding the spotlight in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area. Five girls, three representing the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. and one each from Holabird & Root and the War Department, have been nominated for queen.

Posters are scattered throughout the area advertising one or another of the girls' candidacies. Likewise several stores and business places in the downtown area are displaying brilliantly colored posters for the candidates.

Marion Candidate

Robert Axe, Junior Chamber of Commerce representative in charge of the queen election, announced today that Miss Phyllis Hecker of 910 Westwood drive would be the city of Marion's candidate. An employe of the Marion Reserve Power Co., Miss Hecker served in 1939 as Marion hostess for the National Air Race show at the Marion airport.

Returns from the ordnance plant today give Joan Stover 703 votes and first place with a total of 2,686 votes. Ruth Botkin, who ranked first yesterday, is now second with 2,275, Jayne Bailey, third with 1,820, Marian Huddleston fourth with 935 and Lois Wilderson fifth with 616. A total of 8,382 votes have been received today from the area.

To participate in the election the voter must pay one cent for each vote cast.

Deadlines Set

Deadline for voting in the election was set at 9 p. m. Saturday. Deadline for entry of queen candidates is Wednesday noon.

Announcement of the results of the election will not be made until time of the crowning at the park Sunday. The four girls ranking second to fifth in the election will form the queen's court of honor.

formula, and that the additional 2.3 cents was granted as a special consideration because the "Little Steel" dispute was certified nearly three months before the President called for stabilization of wages. U. S. Steel asserted such special consideration was not applicable in its case because there was no dispute until the first week of August. For the same reason it argued no increase could be made retroactive earlier than the first week of August.

Rex Hill Gets Air Corps Commission

Lieut. and Mrs. Hill are making their home for the present in Springfield. Lieut. Hill, who enlisted for service a year ago last June, was one of 108 cadets to receive commissions at the close of their officers' training course at Scott Field, near Bellville, Ill., Aug. 8.

Receiving a commission also was Lowell D. King of Columbus, grandson of Mrs. Ida Retterer of Park boulevard. He has been stationed at an air base in Florida.

He formerly lived in Marion and prior to enlisting for service more than a year ago was employed at the Curtiss-Wright plant in Columbus.

McSweeney and Miller Patch Up Differences

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 18 — All pre-primary differences between Democratic Chairman Ray T. Miller of Cuyahoga county and John McSweeney, Democratic nominee for governor, were patched up today.

Miller's organization supported Walter F. Heer of Columbus for the gubernatorial nomination in the Aug. 11 primary.

Last night McSweeney, who was nominated over State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson by the heavy vote he polled in Cuyahoga county, received warm praise from Miller.

"We have been fighting on different fronts," commented McSweeney, making his first public appearance here since his nomination.

"Now there are no breaches and no wounds, only a united Democracy marching upon a common enemy to a common victory."

The board heard both sides of the story and set the rent at $30. When the other side of the house came up for discussion, with the owner seeking an increase from $27.50 to $35, the board started to give a $30 decision on it too when the owner pointed out that this renter had two roomers who paid a total of $26 a month. One of the rent board members said that changed his mind and he recommended $35. When Mr. Reed started protesting about taking this into consideration, the board launched a several minute discussion on the "roomers" problem with most members agreeing that the landlords should share in the income from rented rooms, or at least that the matter of roomers should be considered. John J. Stafford, one of the board members, pointed out that if the rent on this side were boosted to $35 a month, the renter still will be only $7 a month out of pocket for his rent because he had $28 coming in. Mr. Reed argued that the $28 wasn't all profit because the renter had to furnish a number of services for the roomer. However, the tendency of the board seemed to be toward considering roomers because in this case the board fixed the rent at $35 for as long as the renter sublet rooms. The renter left, declaring he didn't "think it's fair."

The owner of a South Greenwood street apartment consisting of three rooms and bath, with range, refrigerator and carpeting furnished, asked an increase from present rent of $45 to $50 a month. He explained in the six colder months of the year the rent was $48. He charged that the renters had "taken in a boarder there now, the board ordered the rent to stay at the present prices of $45 in summer, $48 in winter.

Agreement Approved

A landlord and renter appeared and presented an agreement to boost the rent on a Superior street house from $25 to $30 a month for a six-room bungalow modern. The board okayed the increase.

The owner of a Wallace street house asked for an increase from $25 to $30. The renter said she had lived there four years, starting at $20. The board ordered the rent should remain at $25.

The roomer problem popped up again in the next case. The renter of a Carhart street property protested against an increase from $25 to $35 but the landlord contended there were two roomers paying in a total of $36 a month. The renter said both roomers have since left, and the board fixed the rent at $28. Then the renter asked if she could take in roomers. That started the board's discussion of the roomer problem all over again, and the board indicated it had intended she should take one or possibly two roomers at that figure, emphasizing that it did not intend in any case that unreasonable use be made of a house in the matter of taking in roomers.

The next complaint came from a North Main street landlord who rented an upstairs apartment. He complained about noisy roomers the renter had taken in, and in the argument there were charges of people 'getting tight and noisy" and arguments from both sides. The board asked about the rent figure in dispute and learned that the landlord wanted to get the renters out. The board then washed its hands of the case explaining evictions can be handled only through court proceedings.

Presents Group of Cases

The last person to appear before the board was a man representing a group of property owners. The cases he presented and the board's action on each follows. Nine-room house, no furnace on North State street, increased from $16 to $20, six-room house with bath at 489 West Columbia street, increased from $25 to $30; South Greenwood street double, six rooms and bath on each side, both with furnace, both occupied by persons who had lived there a number of years, both fixed at $22, one having been rented for $16, the other for $18; North Greenwood street seven-room house and bath, no furnace, increased from $15 to $20 another North Greenwood street house, seven rooms, no basement, nor furnace, increased from $18 to $20, double house on Park boulevard, seven rooms on each side, neither with furnace, one in better condition that the other, one side increased from $23.50 to $25 and the other from $18 to $22.

One case received approval of the board without either party present. Both had agreed on an increase from $40 to $45 for a Franklin street property, an increase the board decided was reasonable.

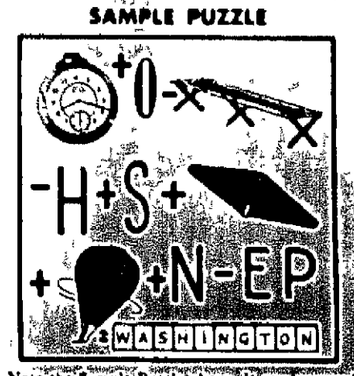
SAMPLE PUZZLE



Note the Sample Puzzle above. It was purposely made easy to show you how to solve the puzzles. Notice that there are several objects illustrated and also that there are several plus and minus signs which means that you add or subtract. Let's solve the puzzle together. The first object is a WATCH. Therefore, write down the letters W-A-T-C-H. Next you are told to add the letter O, and by so doing you have W-A-T-C-H-O. Then you see a minus sign followed by a COT, which means that you deduct the letters C-O-T. That leaves you W-A-H, from which you are then told to deduct H, leaving you W-A. Next you are told to add S and HINGE, giving you W-A-S-H-I-N-G-E. To that add TOP and the letter N, and you have W-A-S-H-I-N-G-E-T-O-P-N. Take away E P as directed, and you have the name of the Father of our Country, WASHINGTON.

MEAT CEILING ZONES BEING CONSIDERED

Method Studied To Relieve Shortages in Some Areas.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—Adjustment of meat price ceilings by zones, in order to relieve shortages in areas where the ceilings are low, is under consideration by the office of price administration, a spokesman said today.

Some method of "leveling" prices would help, OPA felt, to correct the present maldistribution and assure that packers deliver a normal proportion of their output to every area instead of favoring those cities where ceilings are highest.

The spokesman said the proposed zone adjustment might mean a lowering of prices in some areas as well as a ceiling increase in others. Prices now vary as much as 3 cents a pound from city to city.

New England has been mentioned as a low-ceiling area, while New York City with higher prices, has so far had little difficulty.

For areas in the lower price brackets a new pricing formula might be offered in lieu of the existing ceilings under which beef and veal packers' prices are frozen at March levels, pork at February levels and lamb at July quotations.

The suggestion made yesterday in Chicago by Roy F. Hendrickson, head of the agricultural marketing administration, that "meatless days" or meat rationing might be necessary in view of the present shortage, brought from OPA rationing spokesmen their familiar answer, "We have no plans to ration meat and cannot do so unless ordered by WPB."

Corn Canning Plant at Morral Set for Start of "Operation" This Week

Total of 720,000 Cans Scheduled as Season's Output, Government To Get 40 Per Cent for Military Use.

MORRAL, Aug. 18—Number 1 of an estimated 720,000 cases of Golden Bantam sweet corn which will be processed this season at the Sleeps Packing Co. plant was slated to be ready for packaging and shipment by members of the firm announced today.

Operations were to begin today, weather permitting, and when completed the harvest of some 400 acres will be ready for shipment to ultimate consumers. This year 40 per cent of the finished product will go directly to the government for military use, probably both in home camps and abroad.

This year's acreage is more than one-fifth under the 510 acres harvested in 1941. The principal reason for the decrease, according to O. G. Morral, plant superintendent, was the scarcity of agricultural help for farm operators in the Morral vicinity.

Difficulties in getting equipment to put the plant in top-tap shape for the canning season were ironed out by the federal government. Mechanical parts which needed replacement were allocated upon application by plant officials.

An estimated 720,000 cans, about 30,000 cases, will comprise the plant's 1942 output. Last year the 340 acres produced 38,000 cases. During the season the plant generally employs from 55 to 60 persons, half of them women.

Built in 1903

The present plant was constructed in 1903 by a group of Morral residents. It enlarged many several times and has undergone enlargement and remodeling during recent years. The work is done entirely by machine and the huskers and cutters which are in use were manufactured at the Morral Brothers Machine Shop.

At one time the plant also was equipped for processing peas. Because of the difficulties encountered by the slight changes in the moisture content of the crop, this phase of the business was abandoned.

This year, as a result of the decrease in output and the fact that the government will acquire nearly half its product, the company will not offer corn for sale to the public. Sales to growers and employes are the only ones which will be made at the plant.

BELLS FOR VICTORY

CLEVELAND, Aug. 18—The bells which four score years ago summoned volunteer firemen are going to war. The city purchasing department, at Safety Director Frank D. Celebrezze's request, is seeking bids today on 17 bells, weighing 700 pounds each, which will add some 11,900 pounds of brass and cast iron to the nation's salvage pile.

Iron ore reserves in the Ural mountains in Russia have been estimated in excess of 1,191,000,000 tons.

Still Bullish on Russia

A YEAR ago, as one aftermath of the first conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, the American people began to tell one another that Russia would survive the winter. The canvass of the military situation made by the two leaders during their Atlantic meeting justified a bullish outlook on Russian chances.

The outlook was confirmed by events. Today there is need to re-canvass the military situation, and undoubtedly that is what the military experts are doing, with more thoroughness perhaps than was brought to bear on the canvass a year ago. While their findings are not being announced, the outlook on Russian chances is still bullish.

Except for names, there is marked similarity between events on the Russian front today and a year ago. Then, too, the Germans were advancing on all fronts, with particular emphasis on the southern front where their drive was aimed at Odessa. They are further along now, but so is time—and there is no evidence that the Russian armies have begun to disintegrate. While rumors about coming collapse are heard, it is significant perhaps that in mid-August a year ago the news of the hour was the evidence of Russia's ability to make a contest of its war with Germany.

Then, as now, its condition was shrouded in the secrecy surrounding what probably is the world's most secretive government. Anyone concluding that Russia is being knocked out of the war because its armies still are giving ground must be forgetting that Russia still has a vast amount of ground to give before it can be forced to surrender.

40 Miles or Nothin'

WE'LL venture to guess that some motorists in Marion county and vicinity think that holding their speed down to 40 miles an hour is a tremendous sacrifice to make as a contribution to the war effort. What a test of patriotism, indeed! It is not difficult to picture them in a state of rebellion against being deprived of their long-cherished privilege of streaking over streets and highways with little or no regard to limitations and with even less concern over the cost in damaged tires.

But no matter how rebellious they may feel, from now on it's to be 40 miles "or nothin'," according to regulations announced by federal, state, and some local authorities. All drivers were asked to hold their speed within the 40-mile mark and some voluntarily complied. But others failed to do so, either because of negligence or downright stubbornness, and so pressure measures are to be applied.

As we understand it, there is no provision for arresting those who exceed the 40-mile limit, but they will be deprived of any rights they may have for new or recapped tires. This will not hit all motorists, but there is one fact about the whole situation which does apply to all, and it ought to hit them squarely between the eyes and stick there. That fact is the imperative need of tire conservation as a part of the effort to assure this country and its allies enough rubber to win the war. When drivers become fully aware that the United Nations are confronted with a most critical rubber situation and that every means must be employed to carry us safely through the crisis, then it is certain that there will be no one motoring over 40 miles an hour whether subject to penalty or not.

Unfortunately, it's hardly possible that all drivers will come to that realization. So we'll depend upon the state patrolmen and city and county police to add tire conservation to their job and call a halt to the more-than-40-milers. We have an idea that after a few weeks of stopping all those exceeding the limit everybody will naturally form the habit of traveling a bit slower and thus the problem may eventually solve itself. It's our guess that if it does, there will be a lot of lives and limbs saved, in addition to tires.

Keep Mr. Lake in Sight

THE Japanese trying to reach the Solomon islands with reinforcements and the British trying to reach Malta have sustained heavy casualties by attack from the air. This sharpens a question of military procedure that hasn't been discussed in public yet.

Air freighters will be useful, but it is reasonable to suppose that boats will continue to bear the major burden of ocean-going freight, just as railroads will continue to carry most of the land-going freight. But what kind of boats will they be?

Apparently, they will have to be submarines, if they are to escape detection from the air and by other submarines. Simon Lake, who invented them, insists that the United States should be starting to build cargo submarines right now.

If government follows the classic pattern it will give Mr. Lake the cold shoulder and wake up a number of years from now to the fact that he knew what he was talking about. It might be a mighty smart idea to keep him in sight, to guard against the probability of making one more costly blunder.

News Behind the News

War Taxes Unpleasant Matter as Both Business and Union Complain.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—The CIO, and other profit-seeking liberal elements, are crying out that the new tax bill soaks the poor, meaning the union war worker. That is somewhat true.

Orthodox liberalism, as professionally conducted in this country the past 20 years, has always cried out against every tax bill on the same grounds, and successfully urged that it soak the corporations and the rich instead.

With equal political astuteness, and less success, business has generally cried "wolf" against tax bills, saying each of these would make business unprofitable, cause a breakdown in our profits system.

The wolf, gentlemen, now is here. The liberals do not want to see him, and the congressional taxmakers have become so befuddled at noticing his nose indisputably confronting them, that they have been kicking the subject of needed new war revenue around for six months or more, and now are acting as if they would like to put it all off until after elections.

Reach Ceiling.

What has caused the delay in the new tax bill, it is now clear, is that the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee have discovered that the 10-year-old program of increased taxes on corporations and the rich has lifted these rates to the ceiling. There is just no more blood in those turnips.

Existing taxation, without the new increases of the pending bill, is already forcing down dividends, making even accelerated war business less profitable than normal peacetime business.

If you want any proof of this, turn over to the stock market page and read price quotations and dividends now, as compared with last year, or five years ago. A new and yet unappreciated situation has thus arisen in taxation.

Faced with the necessity of raising more war revenue now, and with maintaining colossal taxes to pay the interest on an expected debt of $200,000,000,000 or more after the war, the congressional taxmakers have found they must go deeper into the normal business profits in the new bill. Confiscation or excess war profits will not furnish enough revenue.

The house committee had to dare to tax more from those reduced dividends you see on the market page today.

Profits.

The basis of our capitalistic democracy, the one we are fighting for, is profits. A profits system can not be run successfully without them.

If this were a temporary matter of sliding through a war period without them, it might possibly be done. But as the government is faced with the necessity of continuing this same level of taxes after the war, there can be no doubt that our national future, as well as our current war-production effort, is wrapped up in this tax question.

Everyone knows there is a point at which taxation becomes nationally suicidal, and everyone (liberal and business man) can agree where that point is—the point at which business production ceases to be profitable.

When that point is passed, labor can get no wage increases, the opportunity for work must shrink and the system of production bends and breaks.

The senate committee hearings have shown that point was not only reached but passed in the house bill in many corporate instances. Business men have come to the senate with their books for the first time in tax bill history.

Certain examples were recently shown in this column to which one more recent illustration may be added. One of the last to testify was the Ecusta Paper Corporation, of Pisgah Forest, N. C.

Its earnings statement showed the house bill would force it to double the price of its product (cigaret paper) next year in order to break even—and if the fiscal year provision of the house bill is maintained, it would have to quadruple its price to meet taxes for the final quarter.

Its profits, before taxes, would be $5,943,738 for this year, under the house bill, of which the state and federal governments would take all but $720,711.43, leaving an insufficient amount to meet its annual debt interest of $1,175,000.

Some Changes Pending.

Many of these dangerous defects in the house bill will be eliminated by the senate committee. The withholding tax no doubt will be revised. Credits for debt and interest will be adopted. Some features of the Ruml plan to pay as you go (not all or much of it) will be written into the bill.

A deferred maintenance credit will be allowed for industries like the railroads, burning up their machines faster in war activities than the depreciation allowances recognize. Inventory adjustments may be permitted.

Possibly even the 45 per cent normal or 90 per cent excess

A Miracle in Panama

Army Engineers Near Completion of Gigantic Defense Job.

By CHANDLER DIEHL
Wide World Features

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Aug. 18—Over an area fully half the size of the continental United States — ranging from steamy jungleland to rock mountains, army engineers today are rushing to completion new and greater defenses of the vital Panama canal.

Many thousands of army engineers and civilian crewmen recruited from all three Americas are doing an immense job—working 10-hour shifts seven days a week—but because most of the task consists of constructing emplacements for military secrets at various and widespread military secret locations, the full extent of this job must remain unpublicized for the present.

It is possible to state, however, that the engineers and their bulldozers and their power shovels have gone into areas where even Indians have never lived, where only the mean black panther and the mortally poisonous bushmaster have found a habitat, and there the engineers have carved military positions from the wilderness.

Indians Help

And they've gone too to jungleland where Indian tribes hold sway and there they've made friends with the aborigines and, trading bright colored cloth and food for labor, constructed emplacements in record time.

Modern warfare, as exemplified by giant bombing planes, made the work of the engineers corps necessary. At one time great coastal guns at the canal entrances were adequate protection for the shipping lifeline between Atlantic and Pacific.

"Now that war has taken wings, defense of the canal has become a gigantic problem," an army spokesman pointed out.

Pre-War Dual Control

"The roads alone, which the engineers have built in recent months to serve these positions, would make a two-lane highway from Baltimore to New York.

"But far beyond the Canal Zone, spread over an area half the size of the United States, there must be stationed an outer ring of the canal's defenders. There too there must be airfields, gun positions, barracks, warehouses, magazines, roads, wharves, water supply."

Before the United States' entry into the war, two organizations were at work on military construction in the Panama Canal Zone—the Department Engineers and the Constructing Quartermaster.

After December 7, Army authorities decided to fuse the two constructing organizations to obtain the greatest and speediest results from material and manpower on land.

Named to head this program was Col. Gordon R. Young of Washington, D. C., veteran of 29 years in the Army Engineers Corps.

"War developments pointed out the trend of our work," Colonel Young recalls. "It showed a need for a vast increase in airfield construction and airfield dispersal. It showed a need for additional aircraft warning service locations, and a strengthening of our close-in defenses."

Some Lives Lost

As on any frontier job of such magnitude, there has been a cost too in lives lost. Some men have died under overturned bulldozers, others in the wild swing of a giant shovel. Some few have gone out on long reconnaissance missions never to return—victims either of wild Indian tribes or the jungle itself. Three men at one camp were victims of a raid by sharks upon a swimming party.

But most of these hardy, resourceful men of the engineer corps become more hardy, more resourceful working on this frontier.

Ray Gunn, "cat-skinner" from Texas, proved his mettle when his bulldozer, uprooting a jungle tree, sent a bushmaster angrily flopping on him from the quivering branches overhead. Gunn grabbed a machete that had been given him and beat the poisonous reptile to the knockout blow.

Frontier "delicacies" have been added to the frontier menus. Superintendent Tom Garey of Washington, D. C., shot an 800-pound tapir, and there were steaks for all. Another party headed by John J. Hoehl, civil engineer from Chicago, fashioned a harpoon from a large rat-tail file and nabbed several large lobsters for soups and stews.

And the important military construction goes on—with many projects completed ahead of already drastically shortened schedules.

"I'd have been surprised six months ago at the way these men are rushing these jobs to completion," Colonel Young states, then adds with quiet pride in his men, "I count on it now."

Nelson Seen Needing Definite Outline from Military Chiefs of What They Want in 1943.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

WE CAN measure how important are the next few weeks in Washington only when we realize that the campaigns of 1943 will have to be opened with the weapons that are ordered now and are delivered by the end of this year. It takes time to manufacture weapons: that is why we are doing almost all our fighting today with the weapons that were decided upon, and for the most part manufactured, before Pearl Harbor.

That, too, is why so much depends on what is done this August and this September to make the right use of the badly defined and largely unused, but nevertheless vast, powers which the President has delegated to Mr. Donald Nelson.

The crucial role which Mr. Nelson must fill is just beginning to be understood—even among some very high officials in Washington. Otherwise, for example, no one would have played with the notion that Mr. Nelson's work could be taken over by the supply branches of the army and navy. The mere idea that Mr. Nelson and General Somervell are rivals is evidence of a deep confusion of mind. For if Mr. Nelson is not indisputably higher up than any and all the procurement officers, if he does not participate in the planning of the war at the level of General Marshall and Admiral King, and of the combined chiefs of staff, and of the British minister of production, then Mr. Nelson is all dressed up with no place to go.

This will all be much clearer if and when Mr. Nelson decides to reorganize himself. For he will be able to do what he alone can do, only if he delegates to others the things he should have done months ago, has not done yet, and does not know how to do. Mr. Nelson needs to appoint with full powers a manager of war production who knows how to organize the flow of materials and of parts. When he has divested himself of this administrative and managerial function for which he has neither the training nor the temperament, there will remain to him the least appreciated and the most undispensable part of his job.

War Budget Director

That job can best be defined, I think, by saying that Mr. Nelson's office is to be the supreme director for the United States of the war budget. By the war budget I mean the consolidated balance sheet of all the military and civilian requirements of the United Nations and of the neutrals on the one hand and all their available resources on the other. This budget must be balanced if our war plans are to be solvent. It is Mr. Nelson's job to see that the budget is balanced at the highest level of military efficiency, that is to say, by imposing the maximum sacrifices on the civilians and by forcing the military to plan for the most efficient fighting value out of the available materials.

Now Mr. Nelson has made a very fair beginning, but only a beginning, at increasing his assets by cutting down civilian consumption. But he is still at the stage of arguing and pleading, in his excessively patient way, for a valid commitment from the military chieftains of what among the things that can be produced they most urgently want for the fighting they intend to do next year.

This is the nub of the problem at the present time. The question is whether Mr. Nelson and his British counterpart, Captain Lyttelton, can commit General Marshall and Admiral King, the British military leaders and Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt to a definite program of armament for next year.

Just what is meant by a commitment? Does it mean that they must adopt now hard and fast

President Harding appeared before a joint session of congress and gave a message dealing with the acute industrial situation brought about by the railway and coal mine strike. He harshly criticized the railway unions for their unyielding attitude and most particularly for their desertion of trains at desert terminal points causing suffering and discomfort to travelers. It was about the Herrin, Ill., mine strike "massacres," however, that the president voiced the greatest indignation. Handling the situation without gloves, he expressed the wish that the federal court be empowered to go into situations such as that in Herrin and mete out justice.

"Here is something that might interest you," he interrupted himself to remark. 'A curandera.'

It was not a regular booth before which he now stopped, but a corner between two booths. Squatted there was an aged woman surrounded by little pottery jars. A pungent incense rose in a thin, gray smoke from a shallow bowl placed on a mat before her.

She looked up at the group and said something in the native dialect, which Sandy only partly understood.

For the benefit of the others McIntyre translated. 'She tells us that she can cure any malady, drive out evil spirits, change luck from bad to good, or overcome a pending tragedy. She says she can even ward off death if an owl has hooted over the rooftree.'

"Quite somebody," Gil said. "I've run into some of them in Mexico City and Yucatan." He placed a small coin upon the mat in front of the old woman. 'To buy myself a little luck,' he remarked.

They started to turn away but the old woman fixed her eyes upon Gil and began to speak slowly, jerkinly, spacing her words.

McIntyre listened with attention. "Otea is a real soothsayer. She has just told you that you're about to embark upon a hazardous journey."

Sandy grinned. "She is probably shrewd enough to know that we are not in Cuba for our health."

"If you put another coin on her mat she may tell you more," McIntyre suggested.

Gil drew a few coins from his pocket. "I've always liked a gamble. I'll risk a few centavos."

It Might Mean Death

The woman was silent a moment, then gesturing dramatically with a withered arm, began jabbering.

McIntyre's shaggy brows worked. 'She says you will see strange and wondrous sights.'

'Cheering news, if not exactly original,' uttered Gil.

'There will be great dangers. You will overcome many of them.'

'What about the rest?' Helen asked quickly.

'She said something rather odd. 'Two of you will pass through a rainbow.'"

"Alice in Wonderland stuff," Gil jeered.

"They talk in symbols," McIntyre said. "A rainbow could be a good many things, I suppose. No use asking her. She won't tell any more."

"Could it mean—death?" Helen questioned, her eyes round and solemn.

"It might well mean just that."

"Does she think we should not go? Ask her, Mr. McIntyre," Helen directed.

He put the question and the old woman answered at once with a sweeping gesture.

McIntyre translated: 'She says you have no choice. It is the same as, 'It is written.'"

"Let's move on," Sandy said, his voice crisp. He thought: "This sort of thing is bad for the morale on the eve of an expedition. Why in blazes did we have to stop and hear it?"

He wished the others would have enough so they could all leave. But they showed no sign of it. Helen had stopped at another booth where lacquer ware was being sold and was inquiring about shipping things to the States.

Helen's voice roused him with a start. "Penny for your thoughts, Sandy."

"It isn't hard to guess them."

"You're looking at Miss Fleming," Helen pointed out significantly. There was a probing alertness in her eyes that she attempted to hide behind a smile.

"If you've finished your shopping let's get out of here," Sandy said and took her arm with an air of finality.

Last Hope.

McIntyre sat with them for an hour or two in the patio of the hotel. When he had gone Helen, too, excused herself saying, with a dainty yawn, that she would try out the cot in her room. There was no hint of a complaint in her voice when she spoke of the hard, mattressless bed.

Both men watched as she made her way along the bricked floor to her room.

"Looks like she is really going through with it," Gil said. "Somehow you have to admire her spunk."

Sandy granted that, but he scowled into the shadows, recalling the scene of the afternoon.

"But I still don't like it. She's certain to cause us trouble of one kind or another."

Gil's shrewd eyes regarded Sandy a moment. Of a sudden he said, "Of course you've suspected her real reason for coming, chief."

Sandy felt a warmth mount to his face. He was neither more nor less vulnerable than the average man in matters concerning the opposite sex. "I never guessed it until today."

"I know it from the first," Gil said. "But didn't like to mention it. As a matter of fact, I thought it might turn out—differently."

"I don't get you."

"Well, she's attractive. I thought you might find out that you liked her . . . It would simplify everything. I know it sounds crude, chief, but you'd have your backing. She'd give you anything you wanted, if you married her before we start and . . ."

"And I'd be a damn' gigolo," Sandy observed.

"Not if you were really fond of her."

As usual, in matters relating to Helen, Sandy felt as a cat must feel when its fur is stroked the wrong way.

"Let's forget the whole blooming subject," he snapped. "I want to talk about my interview with Tyra Fleming. She refuses to allow us to join her party when she returns to the Forbidden Land."

Gil sat up straighter. "I'll be tied to a rattler! What excuse did she give?"

Sandy shrugged. "None, really. First, she tried to talk me out of making the expedition at all. Said it was impossible."

Gil mused. "I thought she looked like a girl who would be kind to stray dogs. She must have some reason, chief."

"If she has she's not telling it," Sandy said. "I offered to pay her, but that didn't even tempt her."

"Then it's back to friend McIntyre, chief," Gil said. "Maybe he knows some other nice people who are aching to help the cause of science."

"It's not back to McIntyre," Sandy stated firmly. "I don't even want him to know that Tyra Fleming has refused her help. Instead, you and I are going to do some underground work so we'll be ready to start at the crack of the gun."

"Meaning what, chief?"

"We're going to trail Tyra Fleming when she starts."

profits tax may be shaved slightly (5 or 10 per cent.)

Even so, the new unrecognized problem of taxation will remain the same. The ceiling on corporation taxes and on whatever rich are left (look around you in your home town and see how many of the rich homes of 20 years ago are now boarding houses) has been reached.

The only place, then, where the government can get more money, is from the union worker, the low salaried man, the "poor," if you will.

The time therefore has come for a complete revision of political views from both liberals and government, on this subject. It is no longer truly liberal or progressive to advocate further expansion of the taxing methods of former years to the point of destruction.

That course, while professing to be liberal, is really reactionary, destructive, revolutionary.

Congress and its statesmen and politicians, will have to face the bitterly unwelcome and unpopular new facts of taxation—facts which it can already see, but which its procrastination on the present bill, shows it is not eager to meet.

plans of next year's campaigns in all existing and all potential theaters of war? It does not. There are too many unexpected developments in all wars, and particularly in this war, to permit final decisions now about all the operations of next year.

What it does mean is that the military leaders must commit themselves now to the technique of the war they mean to fight—to the kinds of weapons and proportion among them. There is no other way to get those weapons next year and to have men trained to use them.

Our enemies have had to make military commitments of this sort, and no general staff in the world can afford not to make them. The Germans, for example, committed themselves for land warfare to the tank and dive bomber combination, and in the air to craft which had a relatively short range for pursuit, bombing and cargo carrying. They chose these weapons as the best suited to overrun the European continent. For their navy they committed themselves to the submarine, realizing that with the resources at their command they could not also build a dominant surface fleet.

When their decisions were taken, Germany was not committed to every campaign that has actually been conducted. But Germany was committed to the kind of campaign in which her specialized equipment is effective. And because she was committed in advance, she had plenty of tanks, dive bombers and submarines, and the commanders and men trained to use them.

Real Preparation

That is real preparation for real war, and it must be said of our own military leaders that they have been slow and reluctant to make the fateful decisions. Partly because we were unprepared and everywhere on the defensive, partly because they were somewhat the victims of the illusion that our huge resources are as unlimited as the money that congress can appropriate, partly because they felt rightly that we were not beginning to ask enough of our civilians, the military chieftains have shrunk from committing themselves.

Thus they have tended to aim at universal, all-purpose military preparation—a navy supreme in all classes of vessels, an air force supreme in all categories and a ground army equal in size to the German and surpassing it in equipment. The result of this universal planning is, together with Mr. Nelson's failure to control inventories and the flow of materials, reflected in the priorities. The demand exceeds the supply and so the procurement officers and their contractors have to stand in line and jostle each other to get what they can.

The lack of a balanced military budget, which is possible only if the military leaders commit themselves, brings about a curious and very undesirable result. Instead of the chieftains determining the weapons our forces will actually have in their hands next year, it is the steel companies and the purchasing agents of the war industries, who, in a very considerable degree, are determining it.

They do not wish to do so. Yet, because Mr. Nelson has not yet played his part in balancing the military budgets of General Marshall and Admiral King, our tactical equipment and, therefore ultimately our strategic planning is being given not wholly by the high command but in large part at least by accident.

Ammunition For Pill Boxes
'Ammunition' For Lunch Boxes

America needs more than one kind of ammunition to win the war. It needs bullets, bombs, and shells to annihilate the enemy. It needs vitamins, minerals, and proteins to vitalize fighting, toiling people. One kind comes from its ordinance plants . . . the other from kitchens like yours. The one fills caissons and pill boxes . . . the other dinner tables and lunch boxes. Your gas service plays a vital role in supplying both kinds of ammunition . . . in war industries . . . in kitchens . . . a double duty role with a single purpose . . . VICTORY!

2 Baked Beans, Boston Brown Bread Sandwiches, Pickles, Celery, Carrot Sticks, Peaches, Milk

DOING DOUBLE DUTY

THE OHIO FUEL Gas Company

Gas Serves Navy, Army, Home and War Industries

To get there "fast"...

—with the most men! That was Major General Nathan Bedford Forrest's formula for winning battles in the horse and buggy days. How much more vital in today's age of speed that troop transportation be carried out quickly and smoothly!

That's why Chesapeake and Ohio Lines, along with all other railroads, give the Services first call . . . why we see that their supplies and munitions take precedence over all other traffic!

Yes, soldiers, sailors, marines and coastguardsmen have unofficial "priority." For we know you want your railroad constantly alert to serve them . . . the men whose service is beyond price. So, if this important railroad job sometimes means your personal travel plans are interfered with, we know you'll say, "O. K. Soldier—after you!"

HOW YOU CAN HELP YOUR COUNTRY AND YOURSELF
Travel during mid-week, rather than on congested week-ends.
Plan your trip, and purchase railroad and Pullman tickets, in advance preferably at our city ticket office—and avoid delay at station.
If your trip is postponed, please make immediate cancellation.
When your customary Pullman space is not available, accept other accommodation or use coach service.
Travel "light"—there's no room on crowded trains for extra baggage.
Buy round-trip tickets—save time for the ticket-seller and yourself.
Skip your conventions. Special troop trains are more important than convention trains.
Avoid unnecessary travel—buy WAR BONDS instead!

Browns Slash Tribe Third-Place Lead to One and a Half Games in 5-2 Win

Harder Suffers Minor Ankle Injury; Yankees, Dodgers Spring Up.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND'S slumping Indians got a rest today and too much time to reflect on the batting woes that left them only one and a half games ahead of the fourth-place St Louis Browns.

It was the tough Browns who slashed the Tribe's third-place lead with a 5 to 2 victory last night.

Johnny Niggling held the Tribe to seven hits and pitched in the run breaking a 2-all tie in last night's contest, marked by the injury of Mel Harder.

Hit on the ankle by a smash from Don Gutteridge's bat in the sixth, Harder left the game at the end of the inning.

Judnich's circuit smash brought the loudest protest to the umpires, the Indians claiming it was a foul.

Cleveland opened the scoring in the first on a pass to Ken Keltner, who took third on Jeff Heath's single and scored on a passed ball. Successive singles by Judnich, Vern Stephens and George McQuinn tied it up in the second.

The Tribe went ahead in the third as Oris Hockett doubled and, after Roy Weatherly was retired, crossed the plate on Keltner's single. And again the Browns knotted it in the fourth with a run the Indians protested.

Indians Protest

Stephens walked and, after one out, took third on Mike Chartak's single. Dick Ferrell bunted to Fleming, who fumbled momentarily and then threw to Gene DeSautels. Stephens crossed the plate standing up and sprawled when he collided with DeSautels' shoulder. The Brownies' shortstop was declared safe over Cleveland protests that he was more than five feet from the plate when DeSautels detoured him.

Another St. Louis run in the eighth broke the tie and Judnich's homer following Harlond Clift's single clinched the game.

IF THE New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers don't meet in the world series this fall, they will waste a grudge that would be worth more at the box office than all the .300 hitters on both clubs.

Born in the post-season classic last October but lost amid the pennant squabbles of the current campaign, the ill-feeling has now come out of retirement and shows signs of snowballing into quite a fuss.

The sudden reappearance can be traced directly to both teams' front offices, the occupants of which know how many customers a good grudge battle can pull through the gates.

Keen Competition

It all came about when the Yankees discovered that their army-navy relief double-header with the Washington Senators at the stadium Sunday would have the toughest kind of competition at Ebbets field.

When the Dodgers refused to strike one of their games off the day's calendar, Yankee officials were angered as well as embarrassed. Now the Yankee players are recalling the happenings of last October.

Among other things, they remember those close pitches so the feud is on again.

At Sunday's relief double-header, the one and only Babe Ruth will don a Yankee uniform once more. Serving them up to the Babe in the added attraction between games will be Washington's super hurler of former years, Walter Johnson.

league game, the New York Giants tightened their grip on third place, four games ahead of Cincinnati, by edging out the Boston Braves, 3-2.

The Yankees played their last In the only other National game of the season in Philadelphia, swamping the Athletics, 15-0.

Pirates Duel Reds in Three-Game Series

By The Associated Press

CINCINNNATI, Aug. 18 — A three-game series opening here tonight will just about decide the Pittsburgh Pirates' chances to finish in the first division.

For the Cincinnati Reds, the series could wreck a rapidly slipping chance at third-place money. St. Louis trimmed the Reds yesterday 5-2.

Pittsburgh is overdue for a good showing against the Reds who've beaten the Bucs nine of 11 games since dropping two to them in the series which opened the season. Boston and Philadelphia are the only other clubs over which Cincinnati still holds an edge.

Bucky Walters was slated to make a sixth try for his 13th victory tonight against Bob Klinger.

Old Ray Starr was sent to his tenth defeat yesterday by the Cards.

The Reds left 11 runners stranded and only in the third scored on Krist, using his two walks, two infield singles and Frank McCormick's double.

The Cards scored twice on Starr in the first round and clinched the triumph with two more in the seventh with two out when Martin Marion doubled, Johnny Hopp tripled, and Krist singled.

Blues Trail Red Birds by ½ Game in Tight A. A. Race

By The Associated Press

Kansas City was only a half game behind league-leading Columbus today as the teams of the American association prepared to go back to work stumbling over each other's toes in the big championship drive.

In the only league game yesterday, the Blues brushed off Indianapolis 8 to 2. Columbus, not wanting to cool off, tangled in an exhibition with the Great Lakes Naval Training station team and handed Lieut. Mickey Cochrane's sailors a 5 to 4 defeat in 10 innings.

The fourth place Milwaukee Brewers meet the Blues at Kansas City tonight. The rampaging Toledo Mud Hens, in third place and just about the hottest thing in the circuit, go to Columbus for a double-header.

This program places the four leaders at each other's throats in what may be the showdown of the season.

Coca-Cola in 15-3 Win Over Waldo Team To Win Commercial Pennant

Coca-Cola play softball team last night extended its undefeated streak to 13 Commercial league games by downing the Waldo Independents, 15-3, in the league finale.

Chick Weiss, who has played an exceptional part in the team's drive to the top of the league's ladder, was in superb form last night, allowing five hits and solving Kaelber's giants for a homer, double and single in three trips to the plate. Buckley, Coca-Cola short fielder, also clouted a four-bagger.

The new champions finished second last year.

The Moose lodge team, 1941 titlist and given a strong chance to repeat in pre-season dope, finished second with a 7-3 victory at the expense of the lowly Senior Hi-Y team. Tony Caprino was credited with the victory, while Rumer was charged with the loss.

Smith Clothing Co. finished in third place by virtue of a Hunkin-Conkey No. 1 forfeit in an exhibition game, the Hunkin-Conkey team nailed a 7-0 win with J. McClymonds setting the clothiers down with but two hits. Charged by the softball commission of using ineligible players, the Hunkin-Conkey team has been forced to forfeit more than half of their victories and as a result they ended up in sixth place.

In the only other game the DeMolay team posted a 12-5 victory over the War Department team. Dick Mulvaine, on the mound for the victors, pitched a brilliant four-hit game. Cramer and Bloomingdale led the winners' attack with three hits apiece in four trips to the plate.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—The western division of the army all-star football squad is burned up over hints from the eastern camp that the other bunch is only a "second string" outfit.

Word from Camp Cooke is "We play the toughest schedule—five games, starting with the Washington Redskins, to the east's three; we have less time to prepare; we travel the width of the country, which means the players get little between-game practice; we will draw more people and have bigger gate receipts. In fact, there won't be any competition."...And if Col. Bob Neyland's boys want to challenge that, Johnny Kimbrough, Don Scott, Ralph Kercheval and Co. are perfectly willing to prove it on the field.

75 STARS OPPOSE BYRON NELSON FOR OHIO OPEN TITLE

60 Pros, 15 Amateurs Try To Beat Champion in 72-Hole Play.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 18—Byron Nelson of Toledo Inverness, winner of every big-time golf championship on the calendar, faced a field of about 75 of the state's professional and amateur sharpshooters today as he sought his third straight Ohio open title.

The five-day 72-hole medal play test over the Mayfield Country club course—one of the most exacting layouts in the country—attracted four former title holders and a flock of the other Buckeye talent.

Arrayed against the Toledo star were such figures as Billy Burke of Cleveland, winner of the 1931 National Open; Phil Perkins of Cleveland, winner of the 1937 state open and former holder of the British Amateur crown; Lloyd Gullickson of the Congress Lake course at Canton, 1935 winner who recently fired a 62 over his home layout, and Al Espinosa of Akron Portage, three-time winner of the state title and who once tied Bobby Jones for the National Open.

Burge paced the field through yesterday's practice round with a 68, two under par.

About 15 amateurs are in the field—although no simon-pure has been able to win the tournament since it has launched back in the teens. Bob Kepler, pro at the Ohio State university course, tied for the title while an amateur in 1935, but lost the play-off to Gullickson.

NAZI U-BOATS MOVING SOUTH

Sinkings Decline Off U. S. But Increase in South American Waters.

By The Associated Press

Further indications that the bulk of axis submarines had shifted their attack from the Caribbean to the easier hunting grounds off unprotected South America came today as the navy announced another sinking in that region—a British merchant vessel which went down off the northeast coast of South America early today.

The announcement came in the wake of Brazil's statement that five of its coast ships—including two carrying troops—had gone down off its shores in the last three days.

Few Sinkings in North

There have been comparatively few announcements of sinkings by the navy in past weeks and relatively few occurred in the North Atlantic and Caribbean recently.

The five Brazilian ships, carrying a total of 365 crew members and a reported 60 passengers, brought Brazil's total war loss to 16 ships sunk and three damaged.

The Associated Press total of announced sinkings in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor is now 434.

The loss of life from the Brazilian sinkings was still unknown and although lifeboats were bringing survivors to coastal points below the bulge of Brazil where the attacks took place, unofficial estimates were that losses would be high.

Brazil Holds Ships

Two Brazilian diplomatic exchange ships were kept in port as feeling in Brazil flared into open demonstrations against the axis.

Dublin reported the rescue of 18 survivors of the crew of 69 of a British freighter torpedoed by an Italian submarine 750 miles off Newfoundland.

(Since this ship was torpedoed in mid-Atlantic it was not included in The Associated Press total of Western Atlantic sinkings.)

In Boston the former German tanker Pauline Friederich, sabotaged by its crew after it reached Boston Sept. 2, 1939, was taken over officially by the U. S. government.

COXEY LEADS ANOTHER "ARMY" AS HOME TOWN IS HONORED

Standing in the same buggy in which he led an "army" of unemployed from Massillon, O., to Washington in 1894, "General" Jacob S. Coxey led another "army" to Massillon war plants as the city was honored for its efforts in helping to win the war.

Save Fats and Aid Canteen

Kitchen Salvage Can Contributes to War Effort in Two Ways; Extent of Canteen Service Increases.

Save your kitchen fats to help win the war, and at the same time help finance the canteen for service men at the Union station. Housewives wishing to help the canteen women provide oranges, apples, cigarets, candy bars and popcorn to men in the armed forces who pass through Marion are asked to donate the kitchen fats for the cause. The fats may be taken to the Whitcum Hide & Fuel Co. where they will receive a credit slip showing they contributed the fats, and the canteen will be reimbursed.

A goal of 12,000 pounds of fat a month has been set "for the duration" in Marion county. After the cooking ingredients have been extracted from the fat it should be strained into a clean, wide-mouthed can and kept in a refrigerator or cool place. Mrs. J. E. Frew is chairman of the fats committee of the Marion salvage committee.

Records at the canteen show that 18,500 oranges have been distributed to men in the service of their country since the canteen opened early in May. Other items were distributed as follows: 5,000 apples, 1,200 peaches, 750 Cartons of cigarets, 4,500 candy bars, 14,500 bags of popcorn. A recent addition to the canteen baskets is razor blades, which the men seem to appreciate very much, Mrs. O. G. Stephenson, finance chairman, said today. The baskets are carried out on the platform, by the women and then given to a soldier who passes it through the train and the men help themselves to the refreshments, magazines and cigarets.

Magazines Needed

There is a great need for current magazines, a check of the canteen discloses. Persons with magazines to contribute are asked to take them to the canteen or if that is not possible, to contact Mrs. Robert LaMarche, and arrangements will be made to collect them.

Business at the canteen is steady and on the increase. Recently between 7 p. m. and midnight the team on duty served 1,229 men.

Auto Industry's War Output at High Point

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug. 18—Alvan MacAuley, president of the automotive council for war production, said today the automotive industry was grinding out the weapons of war at the rate of $5,000,000,000 worth a year, exceeding its peak peace-time pace by more than 20 per cent.

Assuming necessary materials are available, he added, the industry ultimately will be operating on a $12,000,000,000-a-year basis.

"This," MacAuley said, "is comparable to producing 15,000,000 passenger cars and commercial vehicles, or nearly three times the industry's annual output in its best peace-time years."

Gable Shaves Mustache, Learns To Make His Bed

By The Associated Press

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Aug. 18—Shorn of his famous mustache, Corporal Clark Gable is buckling down to the rigid discipline of the army air forces officer candidate school here.

Informed upon enrolling that regulations forbid anyone less than a first lieutenant to sport a mustache, he promptly went to a barber shop for a close shave.

Gable did not appear bothered at the prospect of having to arise daily at 5:15 a. m. and work until dark. He said he believed he was in "pretty good shape" physically.

His first training at this "streamlined West Point" was in making his bed.

the remainder are now in jail, he added.

The district attorney declared those indicted were connected with "numerous houses of prostitution and also "call houses."

Morei Miller added, "seems to have been the leader, but all were involved."

Among the 35 "overt acts" cited in the conspiracy indictment were that:

Frank Bruell at Akron May 12, 1940, met his brother and "arranged for the employment of Viola Clark as a prostitute in a house of prostitution in Akron, called 'Pauline's'."

Frank Bruell at Canton April 1, 1941, arranged for employment of "Carmen" as a prostitute at 337 Walnut St., Canton.

Man Arrested Here Faces "Slave" Charge

Hayden Whitaker, 22, of Litchfield, Mich., arrested by Marion city police July 30 in connection with the transporting of Loraine Anderson, 18, to Marion from her home in Homer, Mich., has been charged by the FBI of violation of the Mann act, The Associated Press reported today.

City police took both Whitaker and Miss Anderson into custody on North State street on July 30 after receiving the license number of Hayden's auto from Michigan authorities. Chief of Police William E. Marks said today that parents of the girl informed him that they believed the girl would come to Marion. Following their arrest on investigation, local police learned that the couple had rented an apartment in the northeast section of the city. However, they had not occupied it, Chief Marks added.

Disposition of the case was left to officers of the FBI for further investigation, Chief Marks said.

The Cleveland office of the FBI also announced the indictment of Frank D. Evans of Cleveland and Joseph Zullo, 22, of Pittsburgh, Pa., on six counts of transporting women from Akron to Wheeling, W. Va.

Ruth Alberta Johnson, 37, and her husband, Jewell Johnson, 27, of Toledo were also charged by the FBI with transportation of women from Erie, Pa., to Toledo, The Associated Press reported.

TEST MOBILIZATION HELD AT BUCYRUS

400 Civilian Defense Workers Turn Out for Drill.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Aug. 18—Fires, exploding "bombs" and an air "raid" added realism to the test mobilization held in Bucyrus Monday night.

Approximately 400 civilian defense workers turned out for the mobilization test including fire wardens and watchers, demolition and road building crews, messengers, drivers and first aid units.

The alert alarm came shortly after 7 o'clock and was followed by the general alarm sounded by the city's factory whistles and the fire whistle.

Workers in the various units had been given instructions on where to report and appeared without delay after the alarm was sounded.

Included in the test were dynamite charges planted at the city dump and at Harmon field where a roadway was destroyed and rebuilt by the road building unit; a fire at Monnett field in the south section of the city and other minor fires, arranged by the civilian defense council. Planes from the CD air patrol appeared over the city during the mobilization to add realism to the test.

CORN PRICES DROP TO SEASON LOWS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 18—All corn futures dropped to new lows for the season today, unsettling other sections of the grain market, as prices cracked under persistent liquidation in the September maize contract.

Offerings of corn were attributed to fine prospects for the crop and some fears that the government's sale of wheat for livestock purposes might have a tendency to reduce consumption of corn on farms. The government has 15,000,000 bushels of wheat to sell for livestock feeding.

Although comparatively firm early, wheat later declined in sympathy with corn. Some hedging pressure from the northwest was noted and traders said there was no mill buying of significance.

RAILS AND AIR STOCKS LEAD

Investment Demand Acts as Bolstering Influence on Market Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 — Rails and air transports continued to pilot the stock market toward higher levels today.

Investment demand remained as a bolstering influence.

Stocks edging into new high territory for the year included Atlantic Coast Line, Erie Certificates, U. S. Leather "A," National Distillers, U. S. Rubber, Greyhound Corp., United Air Lines, Pan American Airways, Transcontinental & Western Air, Northwestern Air Lines and Lehigh Valley Coal preferred. Among laggards were Sears Roebuck, U. S. Gypsum and Westinghouse.

Market optimists derived some hope from the statement of Chairman George of the senate finance committee that tax rates in the house-approved bill have about reached the limit if they have not gone beyond where a danger to capital enterprise is presented.

Ridgeway Pilot Rests At Home After Air Trips To Far Corners of Earth

Pan-American Flier Helps Keep Planes and Supplies Moving to Front.

CAPTAIN VERNON KERNS

KENTON, O., Aug. 18 — With the roar of huge transport motors behind him, Captain Vernon Kerns of the Pan-American Airways today relaxed at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kerns of Ridgeway.

But whether peace will be his during a scheduled month-long leave of absence depends upon developments in troubled North Africa and the desires of the U. S. Army Air Force.

For Kerns, commissioned a second lieutenant when he received his pilot's wings on Aug. 15, 1941, may be recalled at any time an emergency develops and he is needed to fly supplies across northern Africa to United Nations base camps in Egypt.

Pilot Now 23

The young man, only 23 now, has been flying the huge transport ships across north Africa since last October. They are loaded with an average of 2½ tons of critical war supplies on one way. On the return leg of the journey they carry army personnel.

Cairo, said Kerns, is the most cosmopolitan city of the universe where one may, if desired, have an enemy killed for half a pound (about $2 in American money). Not having any enemies to be killed, Kerns spent little money in that city and said that the opportunities for recreation are few to the weary pilot who battles desert sands, a glaring sun and the jungle menace ten to 12 hours daily.

Last spring Kerns and nine other Pan-American pilots, also reserve officers of the U. S. Army Air Force, answered the army's appeal for planes and pilots to help evacuate refugees from Burma. For more than a month, the group carried supplies to the retreating United Nations forces and removed refugees from along the Burma Road to comparative safety in India.

Plenty of Worries

The life of a transport pilot isn't all roses. Take for instance experience of the Pan-American fliers when they were moved from North Africa to the Burma Road evacuation. Planes were not equipped with de-icers for flying at high altitudes, there was no oxygen available for the pilots, and the landing at the home base had to be made without benefit of radio controls, through rifts in low-hanging clouds that concealed both the mountain tops and the valley in which the airport was located.

In Africa too, there was the danger of sandstorms so terrific that they swirled dust thousands of feet into the air and made it impossible to see landing fields. Recently, Captain Kerns was praised for the coolness with which he braved a desert storm and landed safely when his radio antenna was destroyed by a huge buzzard which crashed into the ship. As he neared the landing field, Kerns piloted his ship for miles only 30 feet above the water while searching for landmarks. An arched bridge overhead revealed his location at Cairo and he found the airport in the sand-filled haze. A passenger of that trip was a general in the Fighting French air forces.

There is danger too in his present position of civilian pilot for a company hauling materials of war to a belligerent under U. S. Army orders. If forced down behind an enemy line, Kerns and others in his position may be executed summarily whereas an army officer in similar capacity must be held as a prisoner of war.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

WHEN my father asks for an opinion he expects a prompt, direct answer, so I gave mine in a voice far steadier than my nerves.

"I think it would be wise to let her come to New York, but to watch her every minute."

"Ronald wishes her to come down here?" he countered.

"I do not think he really knows what he wants," I replied, "he is so torn between love for his sister and bitterness against her. But naturally he wishes to give her the benefit of every doubt."

"Where can we house her?" he asked, as if of himself. Then he went on, checking off his points with the fingers of one hand against the palm o the other.

"The hotel is impossible," he said. "Too many chances for her getting away, for she is shrewd and resourceful."

"And agile," I added, with a smile.

Spencer's Precautions

"I inferred that," he said with an answering smile. "And the hideaway is equally impossible. First, she must know nothing of its location. Second, you or Katharine would have to go down with her, and I do not wish that. Can you think of a suitable place for her while in the city?"

"It was Donald's suggestion just now," I said slowly, "that Lillian was the one person in whom Carolyn might be persuaded to confide. He says that Carolyn has always adored Marion's mother."

"I rather fancy that Lillian does not reciprocate the feeling," my father said dryly, "but she will play up, and I can see your idea. At it happens, just now it would be safe, and practicable, to have Katharine and Lillian exchange places again for a few days. I know where Ruth Hayes is and I can put a woman operative in this suite who can deal with here if she shows up while you're gone."

I wondered where I was going, but knew better than to voice the question.

Plans for Katharine

"How much sleep has Katharine had?" he asked.

"Several hours, I fancy."

"I hope so," he said, "for I shall have to ask you to rouse her now and tell her to prepare for a short sojourn at the farm. I will send her out tonight, under guard, and Lillian and Miss Whitlock can return in the same car early tomorrow morning to the Underwood home, where they can prepare for Carolyn's sojourn there. I fancy Miss Whitlock can be depended upon to put Carolyn in a strait jacket, if she needs such restraint.

"Richard and you—and yes, Ronald—will start for Weirhampton as soon as we can get a suitable car, driver and guard for you. Please pack immediately. I will go back and tell Ronald, then go to an outside telephone and notify Dicky to be ready for a destination unknown. He will know it as soon as I can see him."

"You will not go out alone," I protested.

Pretext for Journey

"I never do in these strenuous days," he said. "On second thought, I will go down to the hideaway to telephone Richard. I shall have to get some one in authority at Weirhampton out of bed, to arrange for Carolyn's leave of absence. But the federal service key unlocks all locks.

"One point more. It will be necessary for the dean of women to give Carolyn some reason why she is to take the journey to New York. What do you suggest?"

He was humoring me. I decided, as one pleases a small child by asking his advice, but I replied as if he really needed my counsel.

"You've read Carolyn's letter begging Ronald to arrange it so she could come down here," I said slowly. "Couldn't you have the dean say that her brother was coming for her?"

"Excellent," he said. "And I'll leave it to Ronald's ingenuity to arrange things so his father and mother will suspect nothing. Now I must start for the hideaway, and you must awaken Katharine and tell her what is being planned."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Poison Ivy

A good many plants cause skin eruptions. Most of them are wild plants, though some are cultivated in the garden or in the house.

All of them cause a skin eruption by reason of the volatile oils that are produced either on the leaf surface or in the flower. The form of the eruption varies in appearance although most of the eruptions produce blisters.

The blister appears first at the place of contact with the plant, but the contents of the blister contain the oil so that auto-inoculation is a regular feature and the vacationist may start out with an eruption on his hands which is conveyed to the ears and face.

The onset is very sudden. You will kow you have handled poison ivy within a few hours at the most.

Nobody ever gets habited to poison ivy. No immunity is created. On the contrary, one attack is likely to sensitize you to another. This statement is subject to some modification because the vaccines that have been produced do undoubtedly do some good, and their action must depend on immunity.

The guilty wild plants in North America are poison ivy, poison oak, poison sumac, dogwood and ash. They are all vines or shrubs and particularly favor shady spots.

The house plant that is the guiltiest is the primrose. I once had a patient who had a skin eruption on the left hand. We asked each other over and over again why the eruption should be there and there only. I finally told her to keep a diary, putting down every minutest action she performed in each 24 hours for a week. She came back in two days and said, "Of course, the primroses." She watered her primroses every morning and held the watering pot in her right hand while she lifted the leaves of the plant with the left.

The treatment of poison ivy and other forms of plant dermatitis is principally symptomatic and consists in the application of lotions which lessen the pain and itching. The best of all is old-fashioned calamine lotion with just enough phenol or menthol in it to relieve the stinging and burning.

I have talked to a number of people who have taken the vaccines. About one out of four gets complete relief. The vaccine one takes by mouth, for some reason physiologists cannot explain, seems to act better than the others.

One woman I know could never accompany her husband on a camping trip because of poison ivy. Even if she got close to a group of the plants downwind, she acquired an eruption. She was persuaded to take some of the rhus extract by mouth and has been completely free ever since.

The list of plants that will cause some irritation of the skin, not of any seriousness or duration, is legion beginning with lady slipper and poinsettia and including many of the mushrooms and tomato leaves, skunk cabbage, smartweed and parsnip. As with all other forms of this dermatitis, only susceptible individuals get it.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Aug. 19

ALTHOUGH the energies and faculties are under high stimuli for some very definite accomplishment on this day, yet there are signs of perplexity, vexation, frustration and perhaps turbulence and commotion as well. This might be due to a high-tensioned state of nerves, mind and physical forces, which need restraint and proper direction as well as well-organized plans and techniques. Undercover help might be of benefit.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and exciting year with all things accelerated to high pitch, although not always in the direction of desired objectives. There may be turbulence, irritations and defeats or impediments, with elders, superiors and those in high places not to be counted upon for cooperation. Self-sufficiency may be advisable or the indirect, secret or strategic collaboration of influential political or corporation friends.

A child born on this day should have many excellent talents and much constructive ability, ingenuity and enterprise.
